Guidelines

Your submission can include suggested improvements, amendments, corrections and areas requiring clarification in draft OIML documents. Comments may address any other issues relating to the review of a draft recommendation or proposal. If you believe a recurring concept or significant portion of the content is incorrect, please suggest alternative/replacement content and a statement explaining why you think the content is inaccurate.

In general comments should be:

- relevant to the draft recommendation or proposal under consideration
- comprehensible to qualified persons who have not participated
- written using plain language

Please note that all comments will be considered. However, we may or may not include every comment in NMI's published response and submission.

If you are agents of international manufacturers you may wish to direct your input via the relevant consultation processes in the manufacturer's home country (of course such comments may be copied to NMI).

Confidentiality

If you submit comments as an individual, your personal details other than your name will be removed before your submission is published at the NMI website.

If you submit comments on behalf of an organisation and do not wish to be identified with your submission, please remember to select 'Yes' at item 5 of the Contact Information and Privacy section above.
